WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1900.

THE SAFETY OF THE REPUBLIC. In commenting on the fact that during the course of the present campaign much has been said and written about the dangers which threatened the perpetuity of our free institutions, the New York Journal of Commerce says, "it does not seem to occur to those who are most solicitous on this point that the most insidious foes of these institutions are the people who are continually complaining that they are in peril."

On the contrary, we think that while there has been unnecessary alarm during the campaign, the alarmists have in fact done a good work. Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, and the danger to our institutions is reduced to the minimum when the people are on the alert. We believe in keeping a lookout man on the watch-tower always. We believe that the people ought to be stirred up upon occasion and rallied around the flag. We believe that it is a good thing to exploit the principles of the Declaration of Independence, and warn the people against new departures.

We recall that in a certain organization in this State a resolution was once introduced by a member to surrender the charter and disband. The resolution was discussed pro and con. Arguments were made on the one side that the organization should go out of existence, but this contention was vigorously combatted by debaters on the other side. In point of troduced. The patron of the resolution was himself one of the most earnest supporters of the organization, believed in it with all his heart and would have been the last man to agree to a surrender of the charter. But, he explained, the members had become somewhat indifferent and he thought that they needed a general shaking up, and he knew of no better way to stir them to the depths than to pro pose to disband. It was his way of displaying the danger signal and the result of his strategy was to rally the membership, and everybody went away from that meeting reassured and enthused. We say that there is really no danger to our institutions so long as the people are alert, and the way to keep the people alert is to intimate that danger is lurking. There are men in this country today, as there have been such men from the beginning, who are not at heart in favor of a Republican Government, a government of the people. There are men who lean to monarchy, and it may startle some of our readers to know that we have heard a distinguished citizen of Hichmond say within the past two weeks that he would rather see a monarchy here than a certain man elected President. In point of fact there is no immediate dange o our institutions. The cry if imperial ism is a campaign cry, and we have offended some of our contemporaries by making that statement. But we have said in connection therewith that if the people become indifferent, that if the great body of Democrats in this country let the monarchists have their way, in time our in stitutions will fall and the republic will be no more. The safety of the republic lies with those who have its interests so deeply at heart that they will raise the alarm and cry aloud at the slightest sign

HAULING DOWN THE FLAG.

Our esteemed contemporary, the Northern Neck News, is so amiable and charitable as to confess that The Richmond Times eccasionally contains in its editorial columns some very truthful statements, although our contemporary cannot always agree to the conclusions which The Times sometimes draws from the truths which it states. By way of elaborating this equal truth, "that means forever." The Times then goes on to point out that we promised the same thing to Cuba, and that we have not yet succeeded in Joing it and says in conclusion that we never will; but that ultimately we will annex Cuba. We agree that we will always be fighting We agree that we will always be lighting if we undertake to hold the Phillippines; but we see no necessity for that. The only thing properly for us to do is to do the honest thing, and that is to leave the Filipinos to settle their own affairs, first posting a notice to European nations, "hands off." The same action with regard to Cuba would be better than thiever the fairly like Neely who bring discredit ish officials like Neely, who bring discredit on Uncle Sam. Mr. Bryan has punctured a hole in the gas bag of imperialism when he said that it was better, more honest and more creditable and brave to haul down a flag raised in an unhily cause, than it was to spend blood, money and time in enforcing an iniquitous claim through false pride.

We suggest that if our contemporary will only adopt our plan of looking at all questions from a rational point of view it will agree with us as to the conclusions which we draw as well as to the truths which we state. Our friend talks about hauling down the flag in the Philippines, but if he will read carefully the platform of the Republican party and the platform of the Democratic party, if he will read Mr. McKinley's letter of acceptance and Mr. Bryan's speech of acceptance, he will find that neither party and neither candidate proposes to haul down the American flag in the Philippines-at least within any definite period. True Mr. Bryan proposes to promise the Filipinos their independence, but he proposes to keep the flag floating over the Philippine Islands until order shall have been restored and a stable government shall have been set up and established, and we say that in the light of our experience in Cuba that means that the flag will float over the Philippines indefinitely. There is but one way to quit the Philippines and that is to quit, but the promise to establish a stable govern ment for the Filipinos and protect them forever thereafter from foreign invasion carries with it, in our humble epinion, a perpetual occupation of those islands.

IRISH CONFEDERATES.

In its obituary notice of John C. Enright who, by the way, was formerly a citizen of Richmond, the Danville Register mentions the fact that when the war between the States began in 1861, Mr. Enright enlisted in the Danville Blues and served with fidelity and efficiency in his command until 1864, when he was transferred to the military clothing bureau at Richmond. Mr. Enright was a native of Ireland, having been born in Limerick in 1837.

The mention of his faithful and efficient military service in the Confederate army is a reminder that there were many such Irishmen on our side in that war, and they were noted for their loyalty to the cause for their courage and for their good fighting. These men had become identified with the Southern people and believed heart and soul in Southern rights. Lovers of liberty and haters of oppression by nature, they found congenial society in the South, and when the Federal Government trespassed upon our rights and invaded our territory the Southern Irishmen were not slow to shoulder arms and cast their lot with their Southern brethren. They did not fight for a stipend as was the case with the foreign troops employed by the North; they fought for principle, for the love of the cause, and for the high appreciation that they had of the Southern principle. It is to wender under such circumstances, that they made faithful and efficient soldiers, and we would love to see a worthy monument erected at some central point in the South to the noble Irishmen who took part with us in our struggle.

IT IS AS WE TOLD YOU. When Mr. McKinley notified the other Powers that he was going to withdraw our troops and our minister from Pekin to Tien Tsin, and was going to open negotiations for peace and a settlement of al claims upon her, with China, The Times raised its voice in most earnest protest against the act. It pointed out that in the concert of Powers we were so potential as to be really dominant, because Great Brit ain would act with us in whatever position we might take, for the reason that her interests are identical with ours, and that there was every reason to believe that Japan would concur with us and Great Britain acting together. This trio would have been master of the situation, and could have imposed its will upon the world. Whereas, as we pointed out, if we withdrew from the concert, it was obvious that Russia, Germany, France, Austria and Italy would remain in concert, and our position and influence would be frittered away and we should have no voice whatever in the final settlement of China's affairs.

But at the time certain people were making a very great rumpus over "imperialism," Mr. McKinley did not know just how far he might be affecting public apinion with his clamor; he feared that remaining in the concert of Powers might add to Mr. Bryan's leverage on the impe. rialism tack, and, in Mr. McKinley's view, it was much more important that he should be re-elected President than that the interests of the United States in China should be safeguarded to them.

It is turning out just as we predicted i would. The Continental Powers of Europe have preserved their concert; they are carrying things in China with a high hand, and when a settlement is reached it is going to be a settlement that suits them, whether it suits us or does not.

In his connection we were very much impressed with a dispatch from the London correspondent of the New York Tribune, which we published yesterday, and which is of such interest and importance that we think it worth republishing here. After saying that Lord Salisbury's course in the Chinese affairs is cynically described by critics as an aimless game of hunt the slipper, the correspondent continues.

"It has been played in a dark room, for the has been played in a dark room for the leader writers of the leading journals have not known what was going on, and the British policy in the Far East has remained an inscrutable mystery. The best explanation which is offered by those behind the scenes is that Lord Salisbury has remained in the background because he could not count upon the support of any power, it states. By way of elaborating this interesting confession, it says:

In a recent assue it contained an editorial on the Phillippine question, in which, after avowing the Democracy and antimperialism, it said, and said truthfully, that the Republican policy was to "hold the Flippinos and their islands and put down rebellion until a stable government be established," and The Times adds with Germany and France have presented pro-posals for the settlement of the problem, Lord Salisbury has contented himself with revising them in minor details and with promoting a general agreement among the Powers. He has avoided giving offense to France, Germany and Russia, has saved England from the humiliation of having proposals of her own rejected by envious and jealous Powers, and has kept British diplomacy in reserve as a conservative force to be applied at the right moment in the most effective way."

That tells the whole story. Had we remained in the concert of Powers and had we asserted that pre-eminence of influence which the whole world was ready to accord us, England and Japan would have been at our back, and our interests in China would have been preserved to us, But descriing the ship as we did, we abandoned our position and left England isolated, so that she could make no effectual protest against what Continental Europe determined to do. All this is the result of childish talk about imperialism and Mr. McKinley's want of backbone.

It is not too late for the President to redeem himself yet. He sees "imperialism" is still-born. Let him now act the part of a President.

CURRENT TOPICS.

We had something to say yesterday about General Bradley T. Johnson's latest communication to the Richmond Dispatch. The Petersburg Index-Appeal seems to be quite as puzzled as we are to know what General Johnson meant by saying that former Virginians had run away from this State to escape our society. The Index-

"If these ex-Virginians do not like our society, and have gone away to escape it, why not let them stay away? We do not believe, however, that General Johnson expresses the sentiments and feelings of these Virginians in what he says of them." Again we say that an explanation from General Johnson is in order,

The New York Evening Post says: "No further explanation is needed of the fall in foreign exchange, and the reluctant surrender of European bank gold for America, than to-day's statement of September's foreign trade. Briefly summed up, it shows that total merchandise exports from the United States fast month were by far larger than in any corresponding month of our history, and that the month's excess of exports over imports was $56,000,000, against an export excess of only $29,000,600 in September, 1899, and an actual excess of imports as lately as 1835. In the nine completed months of the current year, not only have exports increased by the enormous sum of $129,000,000, but the surplus of exports over imports has run $90,000,000 beyond last year. These are large figures; it is doubtful if any such sudden expansion has ever been witnessed in the history of trade."

in the history of trade."

For a long time past we have been piling up credits in Europe and the only reason that we have not drawn on Europe for immense amounts of gold is because we had no special use for the money. This country is getting richer all the time and unless there should be some unforeseen in-cident to disturb financial and trade conditions we shall continue to sell our goods abroad and ple up our credits, and whether we raw the gold away from Europs or not is a matter of little consequence.

Senator Hanna spoke in Chicago several nights ago in the Twenty-ninth Wardthe stock-yards Democratic stronghold, He spoke in a tent and there were 6,000 men in it. We clip the following extract from an alleged stenographic report in the Philadelphia Times:

Once again the Senator tried to speak Every dollar I ever had I-"

"You are a scab," shouted the disturber. "You're another," shouted the disturber, was Hanna's answer,

"How about Webster Davis?" asked omebody. "He got $100,000 for what he did."

"He got $100,000 for what he did."
"Mark Hanna, that is a lie; I know Davis and he would not do that."
"It will be proved soon. He went to the Boers and represented himself as Secretary of State. Davis proved nimself a traitor to his country as well as to his

by shouts of "how about the trasts?"

It is such scenes as this that disgust decent men with politics. There have been scenes equally as disgraceful not a hundred miles away from the Virginia State Capian ascendency in the polities of some s tions. Quiet, orderly, self-respecting of zens cannot be prevailed upon to attend meetings which are dominated by foulmouthed toughs.

Owing to the absence of two members of the board the sence of two members of the board the meeting was not held. It is understood that the meeting will be held next Thesday, when all the directors will be present. There is almost a unonlimous opinion that the company should put on the cheaper ticket, but no action could be taken yes-terday afternoon owing to the failure to secure a quorum.

Mr. E. L. Bemiss, president of the Richmond Traction Company, said yesterday morning that he had not yet received a re-ply to the communication he addressed to the Richmond Passenger and Power Company on Saturday, relative to the trans-fer question, asking them to appoint an arbitrator. He said he saw from the ordinance of the Passenger and Power Company that the Street Committee was authorized to make this request, and in the event of the company's failure to to be chosen by the Traction Company the City Engineer was authorized to make such an appointment.

At the Hospitals.

Mr. Z. Fellx. Smith was thought to be somewhat better last night, at the Old Dominion Hospital.

Dr. C. D. Ragland, Professor of Chem istry at Randolpr-Macon College, was brought to Richmond Monday and placed at the Virginia Hospital, where he will be under the treatment of Dr. Landon R. Edwards for tuberculosis of the throat, from which he has been a sufferer for some time.

Dr. Ragland is considered quite a sick man, and since being at the hospital there has been little or no charge in his Mr. Terry, who has been at the Retreat
